

Suspicious Fire Claims Training Facility

On June 24th at 22:07hrs, members of the Conception Bay South Fire Department could not believe their ears as the 911 dispatcher read the details of a report of a structure fire at the Cronin's Head Training Facility. Located in Kelligrews, the three-level concrete structure served as a training ground for the Conception Bay South Fire Department as well as a number of neighbouring fire departments. Upon arrival, responding members found the structures wooden roof fully involved. The resulting heat was so intense that it caused extensive cracking and spalling in the concrete, leaving the building unsafe. It was demolished the following day. The investigation continues.

June 2003